“true beauty is found in the overlap, the space between the possible and the sublime.”

-Bradley L. Bowers

This fall, we're thinking about the textures of beauty. What makes us feel good - to touch, see, or even hear? How do Makers take us on a journey with their choice in texture? How does it make us feel? And how does it transform a space?

New featured Makers:

- Nomadory
- Sun at Six
- Gantri

Bolé Road Textiles

HANDWOVEN HOME DÉCOR

New York based designer Hana Getachew started Bolé Road Textiles out of a desire to merge her love of Ethiopian handwoven fabrics with her career in interior design.

During her eleven years at a major New York City architecture firm Hana realized her affinity for vibrant colors and graphic patterns was a direct result of her upbringing in a home filled with amazing traditional Ethiopian textiles. Her designs for Bolé Road are an homage to that cultural inheritance and a reflection of her own personal global modern aesthetic.

CONTEMPORARY AFRICAN DESIGN

Nana Quagraine always loved the unique contemporary African design items she found on trips home. But while African designers often inspire global design, she realized these designer's creations were largely under-represented and hard to access globally.

Nana founded 54kibo along with a team of executives, investors, and advisors committed to sharing the vast creativity and talent the African diaspora has to offer the world.
